

Yair Rosenberg
Staff Writer, The Atlantic

Yair Rosenberg is a staff writer at The Atlantic, where he covers the intersection of politics, culture, and religion, and writes the Deep Shtetl newsletter. He has reported on antisemitism for over a decade, across multiple countries and continents. Previously a senior writer at Tablet Magazine, he has also written for the New York Times, Washington Post, Wall Street Journal, and The Guardian, and his work has received recognition from the Religion Newswriters Association and the Harvard Center for Jewish Studies. He has covered everything from national elections in America and Israel, to observant Jews in baseball, to the translation of Harry Potter into Yiddish, and in his spare time, he composes original Jewish music and creates bots that troll anti-Semites on Twitter. His latest projects include, “Antisemitism, Explained,” a video series about anti-Jewish prejudice.